EU Commission's Knowledge4Policy Platform

supports evidence-based policymaking: bridging the world of policymakers—who ideally develop public policy based on sound scientific evidence—and the scientists who develop that evidence in the first place.

Geneva Science-Policy Interface

is a platform working to strengthen engagement between researchers and Geneva-based international policy actors. By supporting collaborations between scientists, policy, and implementation actors, it promotes the formulation of science-informed solutions to complex global challenges.

ETH Science-Policy Interface Unit is the central contact point for scientific policy advice. It provides support for policymakers seeking collaborations with ETH researchers and supports researchers who seek contacts to representatives from public administration and politics.
